

Acknowledgments

Thank goodness for those who have gone before, including Confucius, Seneca, and Montaigne. Colgate University gave me the liberal arts tools to ignite my education. The Teaching Company put additional college courses in my ears, including John Bowers' excellent Western Literary Canon course. Above all, read Richard Mitchell.

I am most in awe of my wife, Wendy, who lives life, cares so much, and does so very well things for which I have not the skill. I learn from her every day. My family—senior and junior—teaches and comforts. Brad and Sarah, in particular, urge me on. Our newspaper staff is special, especially Frank Page, who helped me sort out my thoughts. Providence has been kind to give me an ability to see skills in others I can admire without envy.

Tom Maguire runs the comfortable online community, Just One Minute, at <http://justoneminute.typepad.com>. He regularly tosses essays, like rugby balls into the scrum, for us to kick around. As TC observed, "I never thought I would encounter in my life a group of such intelligent, artistic, articulate, clear headed, good humored and kind group of folks." JOM brains include, but are not limited to the late great PUK and bad, Rick, DoT, Ignatz, bgates, Melinda, TC, DrJ, OL, Jane, JMH, Maybee, Elliot, cathyf, verner, Narciso, pofarmer, Charlie CO, daddy, and Clarice, keeper of the pistols. Each commenter adds individual expertise, humanity, humor, and breadth and depth of character.

Everything in this book is accessible to those with literary and life experience. I thank those who helped me climb out of what I knew into what I now understand. Neither a novelist nor a philosopher, I'm too busy living life day-to-day to become either.
